

The Glass Boundaries Project participated in the 2021 European Researchers Night

The European Researchers Night, that took place in the 24 of September, is a Europe wide event, with the goal of strengthening ties between the researchers and the general public. The University of Coimbra was one of the Portuguese institutions that participated in the event. The participation of the University of Coimbra was coordinated by the institute of interdisciplinary research (iiiUC).

The project Glass Boundaries - Gendering the labor market - costs of occupational and educational segregation was represented in one of the 52 stops – the GENDER@UC/SUPERA stop - spread throughout the city's uptown and downtown. Directly involved in this action was the coordinator of the project, Lina Coelho, and the researcher Celso Fuinhas.
